

ASSISTANT/ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF THEATRE STUDIES: The Theatre School at DePaul University invites applications for a full-time tenure track position in Theatre Studies, available fall 2012.

Responsibilities: Teaching a range of classes in BFA Theatre Studies curriculum, advising students, supervising student work on productions, recruiting students and involvement in The Theatre School's production activities.

Qualifications: We seek a dynamic individual with substantive experience in both professional theatre and post-secondary teaching to offer courses in areas that complement and expand upon the existing core curriculum. These areas include, but are not limited to, dramatic literature and theatre history from a global perspective, TYA dramaturgy and literature, text analysis, and theory as immersive and performative practice. The School seeks a faculty member who brings a critical perspective to issues of diversity and multicultural education. MFA, PhD or professional equivalent required, with three or more years of post-secondary teaching strongly preferred. The applicant must demonstrate a commitment to continuing work in the profession as well as a commitment to full-time teaching, collegiality, and the collaborative process. Candidates of color are encouraged to apply. DePaul University offers equal employment opportunities to all persons in accordance with applicable federal, state, and local EEO laws. Rank and salary commensurate with experience.

Application and Deadline: Applications must be completed online at <https://facultyopportunities.depaul.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=50812> by submitting cover letter (which includes a personal statement and teaching philosophy) and CV/resume. Three letters of recommendation must be submitted online or mailed to: Dean John Culbert, The Theatre School, 2135 N. Kenmore Ave, Chicago, IL 60614. For best consideration, application should be submitted by January 3, 2012.
