

VISITING MULTICULTURAL FACULTY POSITION: Full time, non-tenure track, one-year appointment with the possibility of renewal for a second year. The Theatre School at DePaul University seeks a teaching artist to join us in our continued commitment to ongoing intercultural exchange. We are looking for a candidate who is committed to theatrical work that reflects and captures Chicago's rich ethnic landscape and addresses topics such as race, gender, ethnicity and class. Appointment to run from early September 2010 to Mid June 2011.

Qualifications: Professional experience in theatre and a desire to engage students, faculty, and staff in an academic setting that includes departments of performance, theatre studies, and design/technology. Terminal degree is preferred. The ideal candidate has a specific interest in theatrical work that broadens and deepens the multicultural and multi-ethnic dialogue at The Theatre School. DePaul University is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Deadlines: Application must be completed online at:

<https://facultyopportunities.depaul.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=50592> by submitting a cover letter (which includes personal statement and teaching philosophy) and a CV/resume. Three letters of recommendation may be submitted online or mailed to: Dean John Culbert, The Theatre School, 2135 N. Kenmore, Chicago, IL 60614. For best consideration the application should be completed by January 12, 2010.
