The Daniel J. Evans School of Public Policy & Governance, at the University of Washington, invites applications for two tenure-track faculty positions at the rank of Assistant Professor, beginning in Fall 2017 (100% FTE, 9 month appointment, UW Job Class Code: 0113). Highest priority will be given to candidates whose work addresses institutional discrimination, race and economic inequality, equal opportunity, or the complexities of engaging marginalized communities in governance. Our School values diversity, rigor, and innovative approaches to public policy analysis and public management research and practice. We seek candidates from all disciplines that inform public policy and management, but are particularly interested in applicants with scholarship in one of the following areas: contemporary ethical issues; democratic theory and theories of justice; environmental policy; civil society and philanthropy; or urban and metropolitan issues.

Applicants should provide a formal letter of interest indicating teaching and research interests, curriculum vitae, at least three letters of recommendation, samples of research work and teaching experience (with course evaluations if available), and a statement noting how their teaching, research and service have the potential to support the Evans School’s commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion. PhD in relevant field, or foreign equivalent required. All University of Washington faculty engage in teaching, research, and service.

The University of Washington’s Daniel J. Evans School of Public Policy & Governance is recognized as one of the best public affairs programs in the country. Named after three-term Washington governor Daniel J. Evans, the School is located in close proximity to a strong public sector environment, and has partnerships with the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation and other organizations leading the way to drive change for the public good. The UW offers one of the most exceptional research and teaching environments in the United States. Seattle is a region of explosive growth, global trade, technological advancement, a thriving nonprofit community, and a long history of progressive government. It is also a cultural metropolis surrounded by the unparalleled natural beauty of the Pacific Northwest. Seattle offers a quality of life that is among the highest in the country, with beautiful lakes and parks, incredible walkability, bike lanes, and a lively music and cultural scene.

The University of Washington is an affirmative action and equal opportunity employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, national origin, age, protected veteran or disabled status, or genetic information. In accord with the University’s expressed commitment to excellence and equity, contributions in scholarship and research, teaching, and service that address diversity and equal opportunity are among the professional and scholarly qualifications for appointment and promotion.

Applications should be submitted to Interfolio (apply.interfolio.com/35931); initial review will begin October 1, 2016 and will continue until the positions are filled. Contact: Kimberly Hay, Assistant Director of Academic Services, kfs3903@uw.edu. Candidates who fail to satisfy minimum qualifications cannot be considered for this position.
