New York University (NYU), the largest private university in the United States and a globally distinguished research university, seeks an experienced, enterprising, and inspiring leader to serve as its Chief Diversity Officer (provisional title, subject to change). The CDO will report directly to the President, will partner closely with the Provost, will participate in the senior leadership of the University, and will lead the efforts of the University community in the development and implementation of a strategic vision and operational plan that systemically advances equity, inclusion, and diversity as core components of the university's mission. The CDO will be supported by human, financial, and technological resources to achieve University goals.

NYU has 17 schools and colleges and one of the largest and most prestigious medical centers in New York City. More recently, the University has been a leader in establishing itself as a Global Network University that now includes, in addition to New York, full degree-granting campuses in Abu Dhabi and Shanghai, as well as 11 global academic centers on six continents. It has more than 5,000 full-time faculty members, and more than 50,000 students, roughly half undergraduates and half graduate and professional students. Students come from every state in the U.S. and more than 130 countries.

NYU seeks a strategic leader with knowledge of and experience in the academy and a proven track record of successfully creating and tracking equity, inclusion, and diversity initiatives and collaborating with a broad range of constituencies in their implementation within a complex and dynamic environment, both domestically and globally. The successful candidate will possess the intellect, energy, enthusiasm, diplomacy, and personality necessary to engage and guide their colleagues.

NYU has retained Isaacson, Miller, a national executive search firm, to assist it in the search for the Chief Diversity Officer.
